

Till Ittermann is a statistician by training and has eight years experience as an epidemiologist. He is currently the leader of the statistical methods unit of the Department of SHIP/Clinical-Epidemiological Research at the University Medicine Greifswald and has great expertise in the analysis of observational data. His main research field is thyroid epidemiology.