

Short CV of Dr. Souhail Hermassi

Dr. Souhail Hermassi is assistant professor at the faculty of Higher Institute of Sport and Physical Education, Ksar Saïd, University of "La Manouba," Tunis, Tunisia. Academically, he received his PhD in Exercise Physiology from Carthage University-Tunisia. During his scientific research publications projects he conducts a producing a large quantity of academic publication searched with a high impact factors and indexed in the following computer databases. As an educator, he has taught many lectures for graduate and undergraduate students. Professionally, Dr. Souhail is a fitness and conditioning coach certified from the University of Leipzig. In Handball, he became a "Master-Coach" in 2004, certified from ISSEP Ksar-Said, Manouba University-Tunisia and has trained different Handball teams since 2001 at various competition levels including, World Championship, African Games, regional and elite youth. Dr. Souhail is currently outstanding Member of the Union of University Handball Teachers (UUHT) in the competence Academy & Network affiliate of the European Handball Federation. In 2017 Dr. Souhail was honored by the International award prize of "Development & Research Academy for Sports Science Activities" (DRASSA) of United Arab Emirates (Dubai), for the his best intellectual production for the year 2017, as a culmination of his efforts in the field of scientific and international sports production, and through his academic excellence". Currently, they are developing a very interesting subject in their Habilitation research work titled the "Measurement of match performance to validate the new specific complex tests in teams sport".